

GERMANY SURRENDERS

SOVIET POLICY
TOWARD JAPS
NOT REVEALEDCAPITULATION PUTS
SPEED IN PEACE CONFERENCE

BY DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

San Francisco, May 7 (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov said today that Allied armies are successful in Europe, the work of the United Nations conference should be expedited for laying foundations for international security.

But the Russian foreign minister, addressing a news conference, gave no elaboration on what Soviet policy toward Japan will be now that Germany has surrendered.

His government, Molotov said, already has expressed its view on that question. That, he said, was early in April.

He referred obviously to Russia's denunciation of her non-aggression pact with the Japanese.

Ministers Going Home

Molotov met the press in a gold and red ballroom at the St. Francis hotel, while two other foreign ministers left their delegations to start toward Europe because of the changed war situation.

On the lips of every delegate was a happy word that "now it's over in Europe."

But they strengthened their determination to produce at the Golden Gate guarantees intended to insure against another war.

Among them was an intense awareness that surrender of Germany's once rampant forces call for stepping up the tempo of their task. Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak of Belgium already was on the way to Brussels by plane, because of a threatened internal crisis over the return of King Leopold.

And Norwegian Foreign Minister Trygve Lie arranged to leave for London tonight.

Molotov Packs

They are heads of two of the conference's four key committees.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov, who now is reported to have assured China, Britain and the United States that Russia will go along with them on two more major amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks formula, is packing for a mid-week departure.

A heavy stack of work remains to be accomplished before that can be done. Many small countries are far from satisfied with proposals the big powers have made for strengthening the proposed world constitution. They still want more power for themselves, and the Latin Americans are hammering for a greater recognition of their own inter-American security system.

But word that Molotov had said the Soviets would support American-Chinese-British desires with respect to incorporation of regional systems into the world

Boy Admits Killing
Of Foster Mother;
Gets 25-40 Years

Big Rapids, Mich., May 7 (AP)—Circuit Judge Earl C. Pugsley today sentenced James Smiley to 25 to 40 years in prison after the 16-year-old youth had pleaded guilty of second degree murder in the slaying April 21 of his foster mother, Mrs. Edna Smiley.

"I'm anxious to get going," the youth told Sheriff Judd Arnold as they left the courtroom. Arnold said he would take Smiley to the Southern Michigan state prison at Jackson at once. He will be reclassified, Arnold said, and probably sent to the state reformatory at Ionia.

Called to the witness stand as a prerequisite for court acceptance of the plea, the youth nervously related events leading up to the shooting, the act itself and of his flight to Baltimore to escape arrest.

He broke down and was led from the stand by Sheriff Judd Arnold when Judge Pugsley asked him if he realized the plea would mean a prison sentence.

Gun Ends Quarreling

Young Smiley said he arrived home about 1 a. m. on April 21 and his foster-mother, the wife of a wealthy Chicago manufacturer, objected to the hours he was keeping. A short time later he went to bed, he said, and on rising ate a breakfast prepared by Mrs. Smiley.

After working in the yard at their Echo Lake cottage, he said, he went turtle hunting and when he returned he "found mother asleep."

"It never occurred to me before to kill her," he insisted as he told of getting his .22-caliber rifle and shooting her in the forehead.

"I just decided it was a good time to end the quarreling," he asserted.

After the shooting the youth said he changed his clothes, "dressed around the cottage," and went to Big Rapids, where he and a friend attended a movie. From Big Rapids he went to Grand Rapids, he said, where he caught a bus to Chicago. He said he then went to Indianapolis, Muncie, Ind., and Cincinnati before going to Baltimore, where he was arrested when he sought lodging at a police station.

When he first appeared in court today, young Smiley sulked mute to a first degree murder charge. He pleaded guilty to the lesser charge after Judge Pugsley conferred with Prosecutor Fred Everett and defense counsel.

Hitler's Fate
NOT YET SURE

No Evidence Found To Back Up Report
Of Suicide

Moscow, May 7 (AP)—Russian investigators combed Berlin again today for evidence of Adolf Hitler, and although a group of German insisted anew that he was dead by his own hand there was nothing to indicate the Soviets were any closer to a final solution of his reported death.

A Pravda dispatch from Berlin related that officers of the Berlin garrison, standing before the tables of the Red army investigators, declared the "dead Hitler" was a "fraud and bad man."

(An unconfirmed Reuters dispatch from Moscow said the bodies of Paul Joseph Goebbels and his family had been found in an air raid shelter near the Reichstag building in Berlin.)

The Pravda article said the examination of bodies discovered in the courtyard of the chancellery annex, the Reichstag and other public buildings where Nazis shot themselves, was continuing. Nothing had been discovered to back up the Hitler suicide theory, however, it stated.

Silence Reigns Over
Grave Of Roosevelt

Hyde Park, N. Y., May 7 (AP)—There was only silence today at the grave of Franklin D. Roosevelt, the president whose pledge of complete victory over Nazi Germany was fulfilled at last.

Soldiers with rifles quietly patrolled the rose garden in which Mr. Roosevelt was buried April 15—three weeks before the unconditional surrender he had demanded and confidently predicted.

The guards smiled when they heard the news, exchanged a few murmured words and resumed their slow pace along the evergreen hedge that surrounds the still unmarked grave.

Fighting Still Rages;
Cleanup Speeded
In Philippines

BY FRED HAMPSON

Manila, Tuesday, May 8 (AP)—Allied warplanes already are operating off the captured Tarakan airfield just off northeastern Borneo but fighting still is in progress on the little island invaded just a week ago.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today that Australian and Dutch East Indies troops had cleared the area east of the main Pamoelian oil field. Fighting was still under way in the northern section of captured Tarakan city.

Heavy bombers ranged targets on the Borneo mainland, hitting Keningau airdrome northeast of Brunei Bay and harbor facilities and shipping along the west coast. Fuel depots, shipyards and one-half a square mile of warehouses were left ablaze at various west coast points.

In the Philippines, U. S. 24th Divisions Yanks on Mindanao fought into Japanese hill positions west of fallen Davao city while the 31st Division in the center of the big island advanced eight miles toward the big Del Monte air center.

On Luzon, patrols reached the edge of the highway leading over Balete Pass, one of the last major points of Japanese resistance in the entire Archipelago.

Attack planes and fighter bombers sprayed 285 tons of bombs on enemy concentration and communications in the extensive Gagan valley, on the other side of the Balete Pass.

Airdromes on Formosa were heavily bombed, as were choice targets along the China coast. At Amoy China, large explosions and fires were observed in the Kaoki oil storage sector.

White House Puts Latching Out,
Invites Governors

Washington, May 7 (AP)—The White House latching out was put out today for the governors of the nation.

In a letter for President Truman to the state executives, Edward McKim, Mr. Truman's chief administrative assistant, said the president "recognizes that the governors are an integral part of our national system." He asked them not to "hesitate to ask me for an opportunity for you to discuss" with Mr. Truman any problems which they feel the president can solve.

"You will find that his latching string always will be out. I personally shall be glad to arrange for you to see him."

Republicans backed his motion solidly and were joined by Senator La Follette (Prog-Wis) but it was lost 35 to 28 on a straight out party division.

Only Senator Taft (R-Ohio) went along with Donnell in voting against confirmation on the final tally.

Mayor Of Detroit
Seeks Fourth Term

Detroit, May 7 (AP)—Mayor Edward J. Jeffries announced today he would be a candidate for a fourth term as mayor of Detroit.

Only one other person, Hazen S. Pingree, has won four mayoralty elections in Detroit, and his fourth term was cancelled when the courts ruled he could not be mayor of Detroit and governor of Michigan at the same time.

BATTLE IN BALTIC

Copenhagen, May 7 (AP)—German anti-aircraft batteries on the Danish Baltic island of Bornholm, despite surrender orders, opened fire today on a number of Russian planes which answered with bombs, causing damage and casualties.

OKINAWA LAND
FORCES SCORE
MARKED GAINS

NIPPONESE LOSSES
INCLUDE 36,535
KILLED

BY LEIF ERICKSON

Guam, Tuesday, May 8 (AP)—U. S. Tenth Army Yanks scored advances in all sectors of the southern Okinawa front yesterday, Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported today in a communique listing 36,535 Japanese killed thus far in the Okinawa land fighting which began April 1.

American ground casualties have been given as 2,337 killed, 11,432 wounded and 514 missing.

Nimitz reported the 77th Infantry Division, paced by flame-throwing tanks, scored gains in the center of the stubbornly-held Okinawa line, the First Marine Division on the west flank reached Dakashi village and the Seventh Division drove ahead on the east flank to an undesignated point.

Fleet guns and aircraft gave close support, knocking out numerous blockhouses, pillboxes and other defensive structures.

Earlier, the reported silence of Japanese artillery indicated withdrawal of guns to new rear positions.

A neutralizing attack on the Sakishima group of the southern Ryukyu Islands, just northeast of Formosa, was carried out by U. S. carrier planes Sunday. No details were given as to damage inflicted.

Naval search bombers, again sweeping shipping lanes vital to Japan, struck in Korean waters yesterday at maddening level, sinking two good-sized cargo ships and two oilers. In addition, two small freighters were set afire, two other freighters were damaged and a large cargo ship was seen to explode.

Open Trade In U. S.
For Products From Philippines Urged

Washington, May 7 (AP)—Legislation to give products of the Philippine Islands free access to the United States for twenty years was introduced today by Rep. Dingell (D-Mich.).

In an accompanying statement, he said the bill was intended to help the Filipino people to recover from the devastation and want left by war.

He added that it would not impair complete independence for the Philippines, as provided in the Tydings-McDuffie Act of 1934.

Specifically, Dingell asserted, the legislation would "postpone for twenty years the imposition of import duties and other import restrictions on articles imported into the United States from the Philippine Islands."

A member of the insular affairs committee at the time of enactment of the Tydings-McDuffie Act, Dingell said "the tragic situation" of today could not then have been foreseen.

Hannegan Confirmed
By Senate, 60 to 2;
Hearings Rejected

Washington, May 7 (AP)—President Truman's appointment of Robert E. Hannegan as postmaster general was approved by a 60 to 2 senate vote today after a debate over whether hearings should be held.

Senator Donnell (R-Mo) sought to send the nomination back to the postoffice committee with a view to getting hearings particularly on what he termed a "series of incidents" in Missouri during the present Democratic national chairman's political career there.

Republicans backed his motion solidly and were joined by Senator La Follette (Prog-Wis) but it was lost 35 to 28 on a straight out party division.

Only Senator Taft (R-Ohio) went along with Donnell in voting against confirmation on the final tally.

Carrier Is Claimed
Sunk By Japanese

San Francisco, May 7 (AP)—Tokyo radio made the unsubstantiated claim tonight that a Japanese submarine operating south of Okinawa sank "another enemy aircraft carrier" today.

The broadcast, picked up by the Federal Communications Commission, said the strike was made "in broad daylight."

War In Europe Ends;
President To Announce
Victory Day At 8 a.m.

London, May 7 (AP)—Germany surrendered unconditionally to the Allies today, completing the victory in the European phase of the Second World War—the most devastating in history.

Prime Minister Churchill will proclaim the historic conquest at 9 a. m. (Eastern War Time) tomorrow from 10 Downing street and simultaneous announcements are expected from President Truman in Washington and Premier Marshal Stalin in Moscow.

Signed In Schoolhouse

Churchill then will report directly to commons and ask for adjournment to Westminster Abbey for a service of thanksgiving.

The whereabouts of such war criminals as Himmler, Goering, even Hitler himself although he had been reported dead, were unknown or if they were known they had not been officially announced.

Germany's formal capitulation came at 2:41 a. m. (French time) in the red Reims schoolhouse, headquarters of Gen. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the Allies in the west.

Last Remnants Doomed

The crowning triumph came just five years, eight months and six days after Hitler invaded weak but proud Poland and struck the spark which set the world afire.

It marked the official end of war in Europe, but it did not silence all the guns, for battles raged on in Czechoslovakia.

There, Nazi Gen. Ferdinand Schoerner, who has been designated a war criminal, defied the orders of Grand Marshal Karl Doenitz, successor to the dead or missing Hitler, to lay down arms.

But this force—all that remains of what once was the mightiest military machine on earth—faced inevitable liquidation or surrender.

Presumably, the victorious powers soon will label these troops

War In Europe Ends;
President To Announce
Victory Day At 8 a.m.

BY STERLING F. GREEN

Washington, May 7 (AP)—Federal machinery will soon be set in motion to restore limited supplies of most goods within six months and a prewar volume of production in a year.

War agency executives kept mum on their plans, awaiting the official proclamation of victory in Europe, but a ferment of activity was discernible behind the scenes.

The Office of War Mobilization and Conversion prepared to issue, within 48 hours after formal announcement of V-E day, a sweeping blueprint of home front plans for reconversion, rationing, manpower, price and wage controls during the period of one front warfare.

Stay On The Job

Its dominant message was expected to be: "Stay on the job for the major war which remains to be fought and won."

The "brownout" of unnecessary lighting will be revoked immediately after the presidential announcement of V-E day, the War Production Board has announced. Other officials indicated the midnight curfew and the horse racing ban would follow it into the discard in comparatively short order.

WPB meanwhile studied plans to lift its flat ceiling on civilian goods manufacturing.

For civilians, the transition to an economy half of war and half of peace shaped up approximately as follows:

Rationing: Gasoline rations for A-car drivers will be boosted, perhaps 50 per cent, within 30 to 90 days after V-E day; tire supplies will improve gradually; all food rationing will continue indefinitely with sugar, meat, fats and oils especially tight in the months just ahead.

Hard goods: All durable goods industries—including refrigerators, washing machines, automobiles and vacuum cleaners—are expected to get the reconversion go-ahead within four to five months after V-E day. The retooling and refitting of plants will delay actual production longer, but WPB makes the flat prediction that all will be on the market within 12 months.

Soft goods: Shoes, clothing, textiles and lumber and some chemicals may be even scarcer for many months than they are now.

Manpower controls: The 48-hour week, controlled hiring, and manpower ceilings will be continued, for male workers at least, in labor shortage areas. Controls will be dropped at the discretion of local manpower officials as the need for them declines. In the first three or four months, severe manpower shortages are expected to continue in only about a dozen cities.

Chinese Crush
CHINKIANG PUSH

Force Shattered; One Regiment Wiped Out

BY SPENCER MOOSA

Chungking, May 7 (AP)—The Japanese have broken through in a sector possibly 55 miles east of the U. S. air base base at Chinkiang despite a battle on the south that shattered their left wing tonight.

The breakthrough was reported in an area southeast of Ankang, which is 55 miles east of the big western Hunan province base.

The victory on the south was fashioned Saturday by four Chinese columns which slammed into the invaders on a 20-mile front in the Wawutang area, 56 miles southwest of Chinkiang, driving the Japanese back 10 miles, wiping out one whole regiment, and capturing great stores of supplies.

Allied airplanes were active on this critical front, and flew air support in this victory.

State Conservation
Commission Elects
Titus As Chairman

Vanderbilt, Mich., May 7 (AP)—The State Conservation Commission today elected as chairman Harold Titus of Traverse City, nationally known author and outdoor writer who has been a commission member for 16 years.

The commission reappointed Harold M. Mc Clure of Alma and W. P. Clarke of Saginaw to the state oil advisory board.

P. J. Hoffmaster, conservation director, and Wayland Osgood, commission secretary, were reappointed. The commission recommended that Hoffmaster's salary be fixed at $9,000, an increase of $1,500, as soon as the governor signs a bill to make that possible.

BEAT IS SCORED
BY AP DISPATCH

Editors Acclaim Flash
One Of Greatest In Newspaper History

(By The Associated Press)

The Associated Press disclosed exclusively yesterday morning, (Monday, May 7), that Germany had surrendered completely and unconditionally.

A rigid official news blackout still prevented formal Allied announcement of the fact, but this was expected today (Tuesday) approximately 24 hours after the Associated Press dispatch.

Edward Kennedy, chief of the Associated Press western front staff who scored the news beat—acclaimed by editors throughout the United States as one of the greatest in newspaper history—was indefinitely suspended from all further dispatching facilities by supreme headquarters in Paris.

For nearly seven hours after Kennedy got out the news in a brief but detailed and factual dispatch dated from Reims, France, the suspension was applied to all Associated Press correspondents in the European theater of operations, but this subsequently was lifted for all except Kennedy.

The Germans themselves first announced that they had surrendered, in a broadcast at 8:38 a. m., Eastern War Time, yesterday (Monday). This was without confirmation of any sort until Kennedy's short, straightaway dispatch was telephoned from Paris to London nearly an hour later and was flashed on the Associated Press wires in the United States at 9:35 a. m., EWT.

Life Term Imposed
On Detroit Woman
For Slaying Spouse

Detroit, May 7 (AP)—The mandatory sentence of life imprisonment was imposed today on Mrs. Nina Housden, who was convicted a week ago of first degree murder in the slaying last Dec. 19 of her husband, Charles.

Circuit Judge Frank B. Ferguson, who passed sentence, stipulated that she be sent to the Detroit house of correction.

Mrs. Housden was arrested in Toledo four days after the slaying. Police said she told them she was enroute to St. Louis to bury her husband's dismembered body, which was found in the trunk of her automobile. At her trial she testified she strangled him because he had mistreated her.

CZECH CITY SACKED AND BURNED BY HUN HOODLUMS

BY ROMNEY WHEELER

London, Tuesday, May 8 (AP)—The Czech-controlled Prague radio announced today that the Germans in Prague and throughout Bohemia, a last major holdout pocket of Nazi resistance, had accepted unconditional surrender.

The announcement came as the U. S. Third army battled to the outskirts of the Czech capital and three Russian armies hammered toward the same goal from the east and north.

"The German military plenipotentiary is negotiating with the Czech national council on the modalities of unconditional surrender," said the broadcast, detailing what purported to be the crushing of the last sizable German fighting force in Europe.

"At 1:30 a. m. on May 8 the German command issued orders through all communications to German units to cease fighting. There are, of course, technical difficulties in the communication of this order in the shortest possible time. Therefore, inform German units where necessary."

A partisan leader, identifying himself as the "military commander of greater Prague," said American staff officers already were in contact with the freedom fighters as the Germans, in a final act of Hitler hoodlumism, burned and sacked the city and shelled its hospitals.

Czechoslovakia, innocent pawn in Germany's war against the west, was the last major battlefront in Europe where a three-front struggle continued after the Nazis' unconditional surrender.

Surrender Repudiated

The Germans were fighting on in Czechoslovakia after Nazi General Ferdinand von Schoerner, commander in Bohemia and Moravia, repudiated the capitulation announced by Grand Admiral Doenitz.

Russian forces also were reported swiftly surging toward the capital from the east and north. While Patriots battled the Germans in bloody street fighting in Prague, the partisan broadcast announced at 11:30 p. m. (London Time) last night that advance American tank units "have just passed Reporyje." Reporyje lies four miles southwest of Prague proper.

Earlier reports reaching London had said that spearheads of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army were only some 15 miles

RAILWAYS ARE "STEAMED UP"

Diesel Locomotives Are Arousing Much Interest

By LOYD BRADY
AP Newsfeatures

Chicago — The familiar iron horse is having its face lifted and its innards readjusted in a designers' battle over what kind of engines will power postwar trains.

There's the Diesel, initiator of the railroading changes; there's the improved reciprocating engine and there's the turbine, both in combination with electrical generators and directly geared to the drive wheels.

There's the Diesel, initiator of in railroad motive power since the reciprocating engine assumed its conventional back-and-forth form. It is now used for all types of railroading except suburban. Even here the Rock Island is experimenting and hopes to obtain a double-ended locomotive of about 1,500 horsepower.

Santa Fe has almost completely Dieselized its mountain division, one of the toughest stretches of track in the country, and the Burlington, one of the Diesel pioneers, lists these advantages over steam power:

Uses No Water

The Diesel is an internal combustion engine, which means it needs no water, water treatment, or steam piping. There is less track and roadbed wear, since power is applied evenly over more wheels without the hammer of reciprocating motion. There is also greater service in the engine, since a Diesel can go longer without overhauling. Fuel costs are lower and there is full power at the throttle at all times, regardless of load conditions.

Some engineers, however, admit two other factors to the picture—the higher cost of the Diesel locomotive as compared to the standard steam (roughly $200,000 to $70,000), and the fact that a large part of railroad business is in hauling coal to be burned by other railroads.

Turn About

According to economist Leonard Ayres, one-fifth of all the coal mined in this country is used by steam locomotives, and this must be carried, for the most part, by rail. Hence the roads, with a weather eye to income, have begun experimenting with other types of steam propulsion.

One, the Pennsylvania's Q-2, is a multi-cylinder reciprocating engine. Company officials say it will develop 45 per cent more tractive power on a standing train than will the most powerful locomotive in Pennsy's fleet. Fifty of these are being built.

The Q-2 admittedly represents an attempt to match the Diesel feature of full-power at the moment of starting. Speeds above 100 miles per hour are envisioned for it.

Like Windmills

Yet because of the low efficiencies of the reciprocating engine which cannot be improved beyond a certain point by the addition of more cylinders, Pennsylvania and other roads, notably the Chesapeake and Ohio, have turned to the steam turbine. This is much like a windmill: steam is jetted against blades fixed to a rotor, thus generating rotary motion and eliminating one of the big losses of a reciprocating engine — the transformation of back-and-forth motion into the wheels' rotary motion.

Pennsylvania has also developed the S-2 direct drive and the triplex engine. The triplex, a giant in dimensions and horsepower, has been modeled radically to attain maximum coal and water capacity and has a wheel-base of 122 1-2 feet. The cab will be at the head end.

The C&O has asked war production board approval to build three turbo-electric locomotives, which also will have the advantage of full starting power. These will be 6,000 horsepower units capable of 100 miles an hour "even on grade," according to the company.

The company also asserts: "In horsepower per self-contained unit, this turbine-electric locomotive will surpass by two or three times the most powerful diesel locomotive yet built."

Youth, 17, Bound Over On Assault And Robbery Count

Leonard Gerou, 17, of 905 First Avenue north, yesterday afternoon waived examination and was bound to circuit court on a charge of assault and robbery. He was remanded to jail when he failed to post a $1,000 bond for his appearance in circuit court.

Escanaba police arrested the youth at 1:45 a. m. in an Escanaba eating place.

The arrest followed by about one hour the assault and robbery of Gabriel Grodeski, about 50, of the Welcome hotel.

Gerou in a statement to police admitted that he had struck Grodeski three times and had taken his wallet containing $14. The wallet and the money were found on Gerou.

Grodeski reported to police that he met Gerou at the corner of Ludington and Stephenson avenue and that the two walked to the 300 block on Stephenson avenue. Grodeski said that he was knocked down, kicked and robbed. He suffered a black eye.

War In Europe Ended; Truman Talk At 8 A. M.

guerrilla outlaws, subject to execution unless they yield.

Scoop For Kennedy

The only details of Germany's ignominious end came from Ed Kennedy, chief of the Associated Press staff on the western front, who was the first to flash the word the world had long awaited.

His story said: "Germany surrendered unconditionally to the western Allies and Russia at 0241 (French time) today in the Reims red schoolhouse which is the headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower."

"The surrender which brought the war in Europe to a formal end after five years and eight months of bloodshed and destruction was signed for Germany by Col. Gen. Gustaf (Alfred) Jodl. Jodl is the new chief of staff of the Wehrmacht."

"It was signed for the supreme Allied command — the United States and Britain — by Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, Eisenhower's chief of staff; for Russia by Gen. Ivan Susloparov, member of a military mission on the western front, and for France by Gen. Francois Sevez."

Thus to the very end did the Allies deny to the Germans their hope of concluding a separate peace.

Received By Eisenhower

"Gen. Eisenhower was not present at the signing," Kennedy said, "but immediately afterward Jodl and his fellow delegate, Gen. Admiral Hans Georg Friedeburg, were received by the supreme commander."

It was Friedeburg, named commander in chief of the German navy after Doenitz took over the falling third Reich, who negotiated last week the unconditional surrender of 1,000,000 German soldiers in Denmark, Holland and northwestern Germany.

"They were asked sternly if they understood the surrender terms imposed upon Germany and if they would be carried out by Germany," Kennedy continued. "They answered 'Yes.'"

"Germany, which began the war with a ruthless attack upon Poland, followed by successive aggressions and unpeppable brutality in internment camps, surrendered with an appeal to the victors for mercy toward the German people and the armed forces."

Harsh Terms Unavoidable

Kennedy reported Jodl then said he wanted to speak and was given permission to do so.

"With this signature," Jodl said softly, "the German people and the armed forces are for better or worse delivered into the victor's hands."

"In this war, which has lasted more than five years, both have achieved and suffered more than perhaps any other people in the world."

Before Kennedy's dispatch was received, Doenitz broadcast from Flensburg an order to all U-boats to "cease activity."

German Foreign Minister Count Ludwig Schwerin von Krosigk then followed to say "The high command of the armed forces today at the order of Grand Admiral Doenitz declared the unconditional surrender of all fighting German troops."

The foreign minister declared the terms were harsh but unavoidable and urged the Germans to "accept this burden and stand loyally by the obligations we have undertaken."

"We may hope," he added, "that the atmosphere of hatred which today surrounds Germany all over the world will give place to a spirit of reconciliation among the nations without which the world cannot recover."

Peace In Norway

guerrilla outlaws, subject to execution unless they yield.

Scoop For Kennedy

The only details of Germany's ignominious end came from Ed Kennedy, chief of the Associated Press staff on the western front, who was the first to flash the word the world had long awaited.

His story said: "Germany surrendered unconditionally to the western Allies and Russia at 0241 (French time) today in the Reims red schoolhouse which is the headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower."

"The surrender which brought the war in Europe to a formal end after five years and eight months of bloodshed and destruction was signed for Germany by Col. Gen. Gustaf (Alfred) Jodl. Jodl is the new chief of staff of the Wehrmacht."

"It was signed for the supreme Allied command — the United States and Britain — by Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, Eisenhower's chief of staff; for Russia by Gen. Ivan Susloparov, member of a military mission on the western front, and for France by Gen. Francois Sevez."

Thus to the very end did the Allies deny to the Germans their hope of concluding a separate peace.

Received By Eisenhower

"Gen. Eisenhower was not present at the signing," Kennedy said, "but immediately afterward Jodl and his fellow delegate, Gen. Admiral Hans Georg Friedeburg, were received by the supreme commander."

It was Friedeburg, named commander in chief of the German navy after Doenitz took over the falling third Reich, who negotiated last week the unconditional surrender of 1,000,000 German soldiers in Denmark, Holland and northwestern Germany.

"They were asked sternly if they understood the surrender terms imposed upon Germany and if they would be carried out by Germany," Kennedy continued. "They answered 'Yes.'"

"Germany, which began the war with a ruthless attack upon Poland, followed by successive aggressions and unpeppable brutality in internment camps, surrendered with an appeal to the victors for mercy toward the German people and the armed forces."

Harsh Terms Unavoidable

Kennedy reported Jodl then said he wanted to speak and was given permission to do so.

"With this signature," Jodl said softly, "the German people and the armed forces are for better or worse delivered into the victor's hands."

"In this war, which has lasted more than five years, both have achieved and suffered more than perhaps any other people in the world."

Before Kennedy's dispatch was received, Doenitz broadcast from Flensburg an order to all U-boats to "cease activity."

German Foreign Minister Count Ludwig Schwerin von Krosigk then followed to say "The high command of the armed forces today at the order of Grand Admiral Doenitz declared the unconditional surrender of all fighting German troops."

The foreign minister declared the terms were harsh but unavoidable and urged the Germans to "accept this burden and stand loyally by the obligations we have undertaken."

"We may hope," he added, "that the atmosphere of hatred which today surrounds Germany all over the world will give place to a spirit of reconciliation among the nations without which the world cannot recover."

charter, as well as their wishes on review of treaties or any other situations threatening peace, served to cement big power efforts at unity.

Britain's Anthony Eden, even before he reached San Francisco, had made plans to hasten back to London soon after Germany's resistance ended.

Little Nation's Heard

The big five foreign ministers took up at an afternoon conference the amendments offered by China, Russia, Britain and the United States to the proposed charter. Then they turned to small power amendments, attempting to guide their delegates in their work at conference commission and committee sessions.

Chiefly they centered attention on little nation demands for:

1. Strengthening a general assembly of world organization to give little countries more authority in shaping international affairs.

2. Restricting the veto power which a security council—the instrumentality which would have the real peace-keeping authority—could wield over use of force and sanctions to check aggression.

3. Enlarging the security council's membership from 11 to 14 to give representation to small nations.

4. Additional exemption of regional security amendments from control of the world organization.

Now loosely drawn, the language proposed by the big four on regional systems would exempt only such pacts as those between Soviet Russia and France and Czechoslovakia, which are aimed against future Axis aggression.

An American official said efforts were under way to provide exemption also for the act of Chapultepec, the inter-American document under which the 21 American republics agreed to use forceable means, if need be, to stop threats of war in this hemisphere.

On the question of a new Polish government, which Molotov has insisted all along is divorced from this conference, Russia, Britain and the United States still were at odds. There were indications that top-level moves were under way, involving President Truman, Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill.

It appeared, therefore, that any real solution to the issue of broadening the Soviet recognized Polish government now in Warsaw, might be worked out in Moscow, London and Washington.

Schedule Eagles Banquet Tonight

The grand worthy president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, John W. Young, will arrive in Escanaba today to preside at the banquet and meeting which will be held tonight in his honor. The banquet will begin at 6:30 o'clock at the Sherman hotel. The meeting will be held at Eagles hall, where initiation of candidates for membership will be held.

Delegations from Menominee and other Upper Peninsula cities will attend. In all about 200 Eagles will be on hand to greet Mr. Young.

The class of candidates to be initiated will be composed of over 50 men. They will be guests of the membership at the banquet and all candidates are urged to be present.

The meeting is important because of the presence of the order's grand worthy president. It has been several years since the local aerie has been so honored.

EIGHT FLIERS CELEBRATE

London, May 7 (AP)—Eight men of a B-24 Liberator, including Sgt. Stan Ketvirtis, of Newberry, Mich., celebrated Germany's surrender by having their picture taken in the middle of Piccadilly circus today despite milling throngs and jammed traffic. The eight have been together since last August.

Sugar cane was grown in ancient times, for syrup, not for sugar.

DAIRY CATTLE ARRIVE TODAY

Truckload Of Purebred Stock Is First To Come This Year

The first truckload of purebred dairy calves to arrive this year in a program to improve the dairy herds of the Upper Peninsula will be unloaded at the U. P. Fairgrounds at Escanaba this morning, it was announced yesterday by County Agent E. A. Wenner.

The program is sponsored by the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau with the county agents and dairy specialists of Michigan State college cooperating. It is the second year the program has been in operation. There will be 33 calves in the first shipment.

There have been 187 head of cattle ordered for delivery to U. P. dairy farmers. Of this total 105 are bulls and 85 are heifers, all from purebred herds in Lower Michigan. Selection of the stock is made by George McIntyre, Chatham, extension dairyman for the U. P.

In a telegram from Kalamazoo to Wenner, McIntyre informed the county agent that he has so far purchased 47 bulls and 10 heifers but that it is unlikely that enough heifers can be obtained to fill all the orders.

Of the total number of animals ordered, the breeds are as follows: Holstein, 53 bulls, 47 heifers; Guernsey, 38 bulls, 23 heifers; Brown Swiss, 4 bulls, 14 heifers; Ayrshire's, 2 bulls, 1 heifer; Jersey, 4 bulls; Shorthorns, one bull.

Under this year's plan the calves received today will be held here until all the others also arrive, and then they will be delivered by counties or by areas to the purchasers.

Twenty-three bulls have been ordered for Delta county farmers and three have already been delivered. Last year 27 purebred calves were placed in the county.

Two B-29s Downed In Kyushu Attacks On Suicide Nests

Guam, May 7 (AP)—Two American Superfortresses were lost in heavy air opposition over Kyushu, southern Japanese homeland island, in today's raid on four enemy air bases that are springing suicide attacks on American invasion forces on and around Okinawa.

The attack was the 17th since the B-29s began their campaign last March 27 to knock out these nests of enemy air strength. It was carried out in clear weather, with visual bombing and returning crews reporting generally excellent results.

In Saturday's three-ship B-29 raid on Japan, three Superfortresses were lost but between eight and 15 enemy fighter planes were shot down. The attacks centered on Kyushu's airfields and the Hiro naval arsenal near Kure, on southern Honshu Island.

Belgian King And Queen Liberated By U. S. Seventh Army

With The U. S. Seventh Army, Tuesday, May 8 (AP)—Leopold III, king of Belgium, and his queen have been liberated by the U. S. Seventh army, it was announced today.

They were found near Strobl, eight miles east of Salzburg. The Americans had been told of the whereabouts of the royal party by civilians.

With the king and queen were 18 members of their staff and four children.

All were in good health. Elements of the American 106th Cavalry group had to overpower German SS (Elite-Guard) troops in order to make the rescue.

Seventh army troops are now closely guarding the royal party. Forty-three secretaries of state of the United States have been lawyers.

Possibilities Of Peace Described To Rotarians

The Dumbarton Oaks proposals and the San Francisco conference for international peace may not be idealistic but they represent an approach to the possible, Donald Duschane, dean of Lawrence college, Appleton, told Escanaba Rotary club members, their wives and guests at the 25th anniversary ladies' night program of the club at the Escanaba Golf clubhouse.

The fighting war is nearing an end and the political war is about to start, Prof. Duschane said. He compared the present with the period at the close of the last war, and added that the "political fight" had been lost before.

The "practical approach" of Rotary International to better understanding and cooperation was praised by Duschane, who has been a member of Rotary for many years.

The speaker traced the social changes that brought about the acceptance of Hitler and Mussolini because they "promised much." Today, despite these warnings of change as given by authorities on sociology, and by experience, many believe the causes which brought Hitler still exist.

"Hitler did not cause the world that nurtured him," Duschane warned. And again, "It has been suggested that one of the cruelest punishments Hitler might receive would be to dye his skin black and turn him loose to our South."

The speaker summarized the Dumbarton Oaks proposals and said the San Francisco conference to set up the machinery for international peace is "our latest but not our last opportunity."

"The conference may not even be a step toward enduring peace. We don't know," he said.

While all of this "sounds pretty bad," Duschane continued, the proposals and conference mark the beginning of the diplomatic fight—and diplomacy is the art of the possible, not the impossible.

"We would be fools not to join the conference," he added, and pointed out that this country, Britain, Russia, France and China are joining without cost, and are giving up nothing in the effort to formulate peace plans.

The plan does provide a forum for discussion, and means the marshalling of world opinion. And as the plan progresses the assembly and court will have an opportunity to act insofar as the plan permits.

"We should expect less of the San Francisco conference and work toward improvements. Any such program requires understanding and time," Prof. Duschane warned.

Among the "improvements" to the plan suggested by the speaker were: Provision for peaceful change; a remembrance of earlier ideals "which would make it impossible for any power to veto a search for truth"; and the limiting of the sovereign power of nations to achieve an enduring peace.

In answer to questions, Duschane said there should be no split on the issue of the Polish government. Russia's insistence has its counterpart, he warned, in the United States sphere of influence in the Pacific and Churchill's policy in Greece and Spain.

"And Churchill did not consult us on Greece, either," he added. The death of Roosevelt may have made the way easier at San Francisco, he said in response to another question. The accumulated "hatreds," may be unjustified, or because of misunderstanding, may have worked more harm than Roosevelt's "unquestionable ability at holding Stalin and Churchill together in the Big Three." His death may be a blow to continued cooperation, he added.

"Was Argentina's admission to the conference justified? I believe our support of any immediate action on Argentina was unwise. Argentina is at best a recent and doubtful recruit to the United Nations," Rushane said.

The speaker was introduced by Harold Lindsay, toastmaster for the evening.

Other program features included a talk by Robert Burns, Wakefield, Rotary International district governor; Bert Young's presentation of "Rotary In Retrospect"; recitation of a poem, "The Rotary Wheel" by Fred Earle, and the presentation of a gift to Mrs. Burns from the club by President L. W. Olson.

Two Licensees Get Suspensions

Two Escanaba liquor licensees had their permits suspended for 10 days by order of the Escanaba city council as penalty for a liquor law violation in the last license year. The suspension is in effect from May 6 to 16, and the police have removed the licenses for that period.

Penalized by the suspension imposed by order of the city council are:

Warren Johnston, proprietor of the Hob Nob, 401 South Thirteenth street, holder of a specially designated merchants license, convicted of selling wine to a minor.

Ernest Beauchamp, proprietor of the Central tavern, 1408 Ludington street, holder of a tavern license, who was convicted for selling whiskey.

Police Warn Kids Who Strip For Dip

Three Escanaba boys, all about 12 years old, were ordered out of the water at the yacht basin at Ludington Park Sunday where they were swimming near dangerously deep water.

The beach has not yet been opened—and besides the water is too cold for most swimmers.

Police ask that would-be bathers refrain from wading, paddling or otherwise playing in the vicinity of the deep water near the yacht basin. During the summer season the swimming beach is opened and bathers are given the protection of life guards.

Briefly Told

Seek Hit-Run Driver—Escanaba police yesterday requested three children, or the women who assisted Mrs. Lottie Wells of 725 South 16th street to her home, to report to police. The police are seeking the identity of a hit-run car driver who struck but did not seriously injure Mrs. Wells when she stepped from the curb at Sixteenth street and Second avenue south. The accident occurred at 11 a. m. Saturday but was not reported until later. Mrs. Wells suffered a bruised head, leg and knee.

NEW DRY KILN IS DEVELOPED

Small Sawmills Are Said To Be Potential Customers

Scores of small sawmills are said to be potential customers for a hot-air, furnace-type lumber dry kiln, burning wood waste, which is being tested at the United States Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wis. Anachronistic as hot-air kilns may seem, FPL experts say that demand is growing for small kilns other than the conventional steam-operated type, which for safety and efficiency reasons pretty much succeeded in displacing air kilns for most operations 40 years ago.

Recent trend is for many small and some larger mills to use electric or diesel engine power to run mill machinery, neither of which provides a source of steam for kilns without special equipment. As demand for kiln-dried lumber increases, smaller mills must send more and more lumber to central kilns for drying. The dry-air kiln is not designed to replace steam kilns, but to supplement them. The air kilns can be built of either brick or wood, and small sizes can be demounted for portability in deep woods operations. FPL spokesmen say.

Fire hazards and uniform-drying difficulties have deterred extensive use of air kilns. The FPL is expected to minimize fire danger and increase drying efficiency through carefully standardized firing and ventilating designs. Air kilns are built much like internal-fan type steam kilns. As in the steam kiln, a pipe coil heats the drying chamber. A water spray controls moisture.

LIGHTNING HITS
BELL BUILDING

Early Morning Storm In City Causes Light
Damage

Lightning struck the chimney of the Michigan Bell Telephone company building in Escanaba early yesterday morning and blew a transformer fuse, but damage was not extensive. A meter and some of the building wiring were burned out and nearly all the line lamps at the telephone switch-board were lighted.

The lightning spread soot and ashes through the boiler room of the building and scattered brick and mortar around the lawn. Repairs were made promptly, however.

Four transformer fuses were blown out in the city of Escanaba by the early morning lightning storm in widely scattered areas. Hugo Lillquist, superintendent of the city electric department, reported, but service was restored within a short time.

The Upper Michigan Power and Light company reported that the storm caused no damage to any of their lines or transformers.

Henry Hathaway, local meteorologist, reported that the rainfall which accompanied the thunder and lightning storm measured .95 of an inch, the heaviest precipitation in a 24 hour period this spring.

It's Over in Europe, But—

THE long-expected unconditional surrender by Germany to the Allies came early Monday morning, marking a welcome end to six years of the bloodiest European war in the history of mankind. But the military collapse of Germany is only one phase of the fierce struggle, for the Allies now must turn their attention immediately to the equally difficult task of defeating the Japanese.

Reports from the suddenly quiet battlefields of Europe reveal that the news of unconditional surrender of the Nazis was accepted as a routine matter by the war-fatigued doughboys. There was little celebrating, and the paramount question on their minds was, "Where do we go from here?"

For most of them, cessation of hostilities in Europe will mean a period of peace while they take a long trip to the Pacific war theater, where they must again view the bloodshed and destruction of war, which for them is devoid of any glamour and glory by this time. Some will be lucky enough to pass through the United States enroute and will obtain short leaves, but many will be denied this privilege. Others also will remain with the army of occupation in Germany for some months, an assignment that might not prove to be an easy one if Nazi fanaticism continues to run riot long after the armies have quit fighting on an organized scale.

There is only one moral for us here at home. If we want to hasten the day of the return of our men and women to peacetime living, we must do everything possible to back those who have been chosen for the finish fight with the Japanese. For this last big push, we should refrain from strikes in war industries, we should buy more War Bonds, produce more food and other materials needed to bring final victory and peace all over the world.

Drafting Will Continue

THE army's plan to release approximately 2,000,000 soldiers during the next year, now that the war in Europe is over, does not mean the end of drafting men for military service. In fact, the reverse is true as an analysis of the war department's deployment program reveals.

The United States army today has a strength of 8,300,000 men. An army strength of 6,968,000 has been estimated as our needs against the Japanese, or roughly seven million troops. The discharge of approximately 2,000,000 soldiers means that about 700,000 men will be drafted within the next year to keep the army strength to the desired level.

This is a democratic approach to the military manpower problem. Men with extended overseas and combat records deserve their release from military service and wherever possible, they should be replaced by others who have not yet been called upon to shoulder arms.

The release of the estimated 2,000,000 men will be made on a point credit system that takes into consideration length of service, months overseas and combat records, as well as number of dependents. Men who have been fighting in the Pacific will be included in this group, as well as those who have brought the European war to its successful completion.

For hundreds of thousands of soldiers who have been fighting the Germans, the end of hostilities on that continent will mean only a relatively brief pause, a furlough back home, and then transfer to the Pacific theater of war. Many service and supply troops will be transferred directly to the Pacific, without the pleasure of furloughs back to the states.

This is essential in order to bring our maximum power to the aid of General MacArthur and Admiral Nimitz at the quickest possible time.

Mighty bases must be constructed in the areas that we have wrested from the Japanese before the full importance of those conquests will be realized. The redeployment will take time, but it should be accomplished with the least possible delay in order to speed the final victory against the Japanese.

Allies Cruel, Say Huns

CORRESPONDENTS who have talked with civilians in the conquered Reich are sending out stories that lend little encouragement that the re-education of the Germans will be an easy job. It is more likely to be a discouragingly long process of undoing all the false education that has been carried on since Hitler rose to power.

Writing from Munich, Joseph C. Harsch, staff correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor, tells about encountering a German woman wearing a fur coat and leading a well-fed dog. The woman demanded that he promptly furnish food to a another woman accompanying her, and berated the Allies for cutting off her telephone service. Other German civilians, living close to the horror camps where thousands of slave laborers and other human beings were murdered, criticize the Allies for the wreckage war has brought to their country. They want to know how soon Germany will be rehabilitated so that they can return to comfortable living.

Few of the civilians, interviewed by correspondents, are disposed to criticize Hitler for starting the war. Instead, they merely express regret that he failed to achieve his dreams of world conquest. Neither do they display any great amount of sorrow for the thousands who were allowed to die of starvation and disease in the concentration camps while they were well-fed. Now, they want to know how soon the Poles, French, Russians and other slave laborers, brought to Germany to work in their war plants, will be returned to their homes. They don't want them around, now that they have no further use for them.

Evidence gathered at the Nazi horror camps points that Hitler was carrying out his diabolical plan to exterminate large populations of the countries he had conquered. And there is much evidence, too, that most of the German people thought it was a good idea.

LaGuardia to Quit

FORMAL announcement has been made by Mayor LaGuardia that he will not seek a fourth term in the New York municipal election next fall.

His decision likely was prompted by the political situation that has resulted from the death of President Roosevelt, who used his influence to obtain the last election of New York's fiery mayor. LaGuardia began his career in national politics when he was elected to Congress in 1916 as a Republican, although he soon afterward became a staunch supporter of President Woodrow Wilson.

With the outbreak of the first World War, LaGuardia enlisted in the American air corps and went to Italy. Returning to New York, he reentered politics and was elected Republican president of the board of aldermen.

Defeated as a Republican candidate for Congress when the Democrats swept the nation in 1932, LaGuardia came back in the fall of the next year to defeat Tammany for the mayoralty on a coalition ticket of Republicans and other political elements opposed to Democratic boss rule in the nation's largest city. He was re-elected in 1937 and 1941, largely as a result of the support of the newly formed American Labor party and Roosevelt's personal influence.

President Roosevelt's death leaves Mayor LaGuardia for the time being with no place to go. He has never been aligned with the Democratic organization, the Republican party won't have him, and the American Labor party has insufficient strength to assure him victory at the polls, for in the last election he won by the narrowest margin of his political campaigns, even with Roosevelt's blessing.

OUTLOOK FOR 1946 (Grand Rapids Press)

In preparing for next year's congressional elections administration leaders will have to overcome not only the intensive organization work now being planned by the Republicans but also the trend against the party in power which usually shows up in the midterm elections.

In the last midterm contest in 1942, the Democrats lost 46 seats in the house. A comparable loss next time would cost them control of the house, since the 1944 election gave them only 243 seats, to 190 for the Republicans and 2 for the minority parties. In 21 elections for house seats last November, the Democratic majority was so small that a net 5 per cent shift would give them to the GOP next year.

A strong Republican trend could also loosen the Democratic hold on the senate. Of the 32 seats to be contested next year, eight now held by Democrats are in doubt. If all should be lost, the present Democratic membership would be reduced to exactly half the senate.

The outcome of the election may depend on the state of the nation. If we are still at war with Japan, the Democrats might make a successful appeal for national unity. But if the war is over and the administration is making no great headway in solving the problems of post-war readjustment, a swing to the opposition might elect a Republican congress.

Gracie Allen Says--

Since President Truman has signed that bill so the Kennebunkport, Maine postoffice can have a new mural I won't enter the controversy about the one there now. Maybe the bathing beach ladies are too fat and haven't enough clothes, but after all, post-office art is still in its infancy.

Why, once the only art you saw in post offices were posters showing front and side views of men's faces, labeled "Wanted! Reward!"—the most depressing kind of faces, too.

It wasn't as if they couldn't have put up nice attractive faces, like Clark Gable's or Van Johnson's. But I suppose the post-office officials just belonged to the modern realistic school of art, and never thought of what they were doing to the morale of their public.

George says he's for less art in post offices, and more and better pens.

World Events Analyzed

BY MARQUIS CHILDS
The story of David Lilienthal of the Tennessee Valley authority is a new kind of success story. The flood of praise following his reappointment by President Truman, and particularly from the press, is one measure of his achievement in a new field.

TVA is government, but it is decentralized government. The TVA is not a remote paternalistic power laying down the law from the distant mountain top of Washington. It is by its very nature part of the life of the Tennessee Valley, a working partner rather than an arbitrary boss.

In a letter he wrote to Congressman Estes Kefauver of Chattanooga on March 2, President Roosevelt put it very well. Written so near the end, the letter reflects the late President's deep satisfaction at the general acceptance of TVA, "an instrument," in the President's words, "by which big government need not be absentee government."

"TVA, under David Lilienthal," the President wrote, "has shown all of us that great national powers can be exercised as government at hand, at home, working with the people and their local governments where the people are, in the wider development of that understanding we shall continue to need such courage and vision as David Lilienthal has shown in the Valley of the Tennessee to the nation and to the world."

—TEST OF TRUMAN—
In some ways, the reappointment of Lilienthal was a test for Truman, the TVA administrator, who consistently refuses to yield to patronage grabbers, has an implacable enemy in the President pro tem of the Senate, Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee. Repeatedly McKellar, whose record for patronage grabbing must by this time have some kind of world's record, has tried for Lilienthal's scalp.

Truman has gone out of his way to extend a traditional courtesy to McKellar as president of the Senate. He has invited him to sit in cabinet meetings. But if he had yielded to the stubborn Tennesseean, it would have been a signal that Congress was to call the turn on all touchy issues.

It will be interesting to see how substantial is the opposition that develops in the Senate to Lilienthal's confirmation. In a sense, it will be a test for the Republicans who pledged themselves to cooperate with the new President.

They can scarcely regard this as a party issue, since newspapers of all shades of opinion have applauded the Lilienthal appointment. The issue has little to do with party. There are many Democrats, conspicuously Senators Bankhead and Hill of Alabama, who are as keen for Lilienthal as McKellar is bitter against him.

—MCKELLAR DEAL RUMORED—
Reports are current, perhaps inspired by McKellar himself, that the reappointment of Lilienthal was part of a "deal." As the rumor goes, in return for making only a token fight against Lilienthal's confirmation, McKellar will get administration support for his amendment to the TVA act.

The McKellar amendment, repeatedly introduced by the 76-year-old Senator, would compel TVA to turn into the treasury all revenues received from operation of the TVA power system. Consequently, when the authority needed funds, it would have to come to Congress for a lump sum appropriation like any ordinary government department. This would invalidate the whole TVA idea. It would destroy its independence and put it in the position of pensioner, which is just what Senator McKellar wants.

That such a "deal" would work is highly doubtful. In the first place, there are apparently more than enough votes in the Senate to confirm Lilienthal for another nine-year term. When he was in the Senate, President Truman was strongly opposed to undermining TVA in this way, and it is unlikely that he would now support such a proposal.

Here in Washington, of course, jealous bureaucrats have long looked with envy at TVA. Chief among these is Secretary of the Interior Ickes, who would like to incorporate TVA within the vast domain of his department. He has worked night and day to this end and, on at least one occasion, it was thanks only to the personal intervention of the late Senator George Norris that his designs were frustrated.

TVA is an experiment in government by the people and for the people. Let's keep it that way.

Excuse Us if We Don't Join the Celebration

Good Morning!

By The Bugler

IT IS THE WAR—Sergeant Leo Coan of the U. S. Army Air Corps came home from China the other day, and the morning after his arrival went directly to the Daily Press office where he was employed before the war. It will be recalled by Escanaba residents that Leo was first in the Daily Press advertising office, later was a reporter.

At the Press office Leo talked to Bud Stade of the advertising department, and Bud suggested Leo "say hello to the shop crew."

So Leo disappeared through the swinging door and the next moment came popping back to the grinning Bud.

"Whatnashell are those two women doing out there," Leo demanded.

For Leo had found the Daily Press crew in the shop composed only of Mrs. Leona DeKeyser of Gladstone and Mrs. Louise Gregoire, recently of Gladstone and now residing in Escanaba. Mrs. Gregoire was working temporarily in the absence of one of the men linotype operators. Both women have had many years experience at the linotype machines, but they probably would not be working now if it wasn't for the wartime manpower shortage.

THE NAHANT?—As the years roll past there occurs "blind spots" in the history of the community. The only way these can be filled in is through the recollections of older residents of the city, who may remember the incident or something about it.

One of these "blind spots" right now in Escanaba is the inability of local folks to identify the hull of a wrecked ship which is to be removed as a submerged obstruction to navigation. The hull is located 60 feet north of the northeast corner of the new municipal dock, according to A. V. Aronson, city manager.

The city manager says the old hull is not that of the ore barge Nahant, which burned and sank here about 1901. He said that the hull is that of an older ship than the Nahant, and that the hull of the Nahant is farther east of the dock and is not an obstruction to vessels entering or leaving the harbor.

But he does not recall the name of the vessel whose hull will be removed by Capt. B. J. Gallagher's crew. Nor does he know the type of vessel it was, or when it sank.

RECOLLECTIONS—In an effort to obtain further information, Fred Royce and D. A. Brotherton, two of Escanaba's long-time residents, were consulted.

Mr. Royce's recollection was that the hull to be removed near the city dock is that of the Nahant, while Mr. Brotherton said that he believes the hull is that of an older vessel and not the Nahant.

Mr. Royce recalls there was another vessel which sank closer to the beach a few feet east of the old Stephenson dock. This was probably about 1890, he said, but he does not remember the name of the ship.

Mr. Brotherton remembers hearing of a sunken hull other than the Nahant, and he locates it as east of the northeast corner of the new municipal dock. Like Mr. Royce, Mr. Brotherton does not recall the name of this vessel, but he says that many years ago the bow could be seen above water.

What is remarkable is that the name Nahant sticks in local memories, while the "other vessel," whatever her name may be, has become a mystery.

NAHANT STORY—The name Nahant remains, perhaps, because of the exciting and tragic circumstance that accompanied the vessel's end.

It was about 1901 that the Nahant, a steam-powered ore barge, entered Escanaba harbor and was secured on the north side of old No. 4 dock waiting to load ore. During the night two of the Nahant's sailors returned to the ship after a tour of Escanaba saloons. In their woozy state they tipped over a lamp in the forecabin.

It was a matter of seconds and the ship was a mass of flames. Several sailors (Mr. Royce says two or three) were burned to death in their bunks.

Tugs towed the flaming Nahant away from the dock, but not before the dock caught fire and was destroyed. In the bay the Nahant burned to the water line and sank. A few years ago it was reported that:

"The wreckage of the ship, now lying in low water not far from the North Shore bathing beach, is a familiar sight to Escanaba yachtsmen. The wreckage can be plainly seen on a clear day, a grim reminder of two seamen's folly."

Yet the mystery of the "second vessel" whose name has not been learned, but whose hull will soon be removed, has not been solved so far. Perhaps when Capt. Gallagher and his crew begin lifting the rotting timbers from the bottom there will be a clue to her identity.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

DREW PEARSON
(Col. R. S. Allen now on active service.)
San Francisco — On October 9, 1934, a bomb thrown in the streets of Marseilles killed King Alexander of Yugoslavia and changed the fate of the world. The Yugoslavs blamed the French for not protecting their king, and swerved away from their traditional alliance with France into the German orbit.

The bomb was thrown by a Croatian fanatic carefully trained in a special German sabotage school. Its repercussions started a new European alignment and helped the beginning of another war.

Today, in San Francisco security precautions are so shockingly loose that the same thing might easily happen. Foreign delegates have complained about them, but nothing has been done. Meanwhile the ease with which an outsider can get into the conference unidentified would be laughable if it weren't potentially tragic.

On one day while 46 top delegates, including the foremost Foreign Ministers of the World, were sitting in secret session at the Veterans' building, two newspapermen plus two University of Southern California co-eds made a test of getting into the building without credentials, carrying four typewriters. The four typewriters could have contained 50 pounds of TNT each, totaling 200 pounds.

—THRICE UNCHALLENGED—
The two men and two girls drove in a taxi, not a conference car, through police lines without being stopped, and walked into the Veterans' building without showing credentials. They walked the entire length of the building, through the hall alongside of which the 46 delegates were sitting, and then left still carrying their typewriters.

Twenty minutes later they returned. The taxi stopped at the police lines, but both the military police and the San Francisco police waved to them to go inside. No credentials were shown.

Later as the Foreign Ministers were about to end their session, the four returned again, carrying typewriters. Again they were not required to show credentials. This time the military police were even removed from the conference doors.

At the opera house, where plenary sessions of the conference are held, security is better. But the secret meetings of the 46 top delegates and foreign ministers at the less-guarded Veterans' building are much more important.

Should a Hitler agent, wanting last-minute vengeance for Berlin and the end of Nazidom, execute a plot against these 46 key men of the world, civilization would be set back for years. And every other nation would blame the United States for what happened.

TOP PERSONALITIES
By all odds the two most dominating figures at this conference are Anthony Eden and V. M. Molotov. They put all others, including the U. S. delegates, in the shade. Crowds swarm the St. Francis Hotel where the Russians live, hoping to catch a glimpse of Molotov. Crowds crane their necks as the dapper British Foreign Minister enters the conference hall.

The two men are direct opposites, yet their lives have been closely interwoven. One was born of wealthy British aristocracy, can trace his family back to the first Eden Baroncy created by Charles II in 1672. The other comes from a worker-revolutionist family whom nobody ever heard of.

Eden is known as the heir-apparent of Churchill. Molotov is known as the heir of Stalin. Eden can and does cross swords with Churchill, but Molotov is never known to have rowed with Stalin.

Molotov was in power when Russia made its famous exit from the League of Nations. Eden was in the league assembly at the time. Despite their diametrically opposite backgrounds, Eden is the Britisher who Molotov knows and likes best. In 1941 it was Eden who sat in the Kremlin with the Germans only 38 miles away and signed the 20-year pact between England and Russia.

That was one of Eden's three trips to Moscow—one in 1935 to discuss trade relations, the 1941 trip to sign the 20-year alliance, and the trip to sign a pact with Cordell Hull in 1943. He also went to Yalta with Churchill.

—BELGIAN EXIT—
Though put in the shade by the spectacular figures of Eden and Molotov, San Francisco is studied with notable world statesmen. One is Belgian Foreign Minister Henri Spaak, jailed for two years by the Germans in the last war, and imprisoned by Franco and Pétain while a refugee in this war. Spaak is one of Belgium's foremost socialists, his mother having been a strong socialist and Belgium's only woman senator. The Belgian delegation to San Francisco represents all walks of political life, including an active member of the Communist party, Dr. Albert Marteaux, the minister of public health. He is also a physician and was imprisoned ten months in Spain by Franco. Another Belgian delegate, Victor Deleveye, gave up his law practice to fight the Nazis and is originator of the "V for Victory" slogan.

The Germans ran people in occupied countries ragged. Give all you can to the clothing drive.

The least we can do for our returning boys is let the path of glory lead to a good job.

Maybe Rudolf Hess wasn't so dumb after all. Long, long ago he read between the Allied lines.

At last, according to reports, Hitler has taken something we don't object to — his own life.

"Show it to Mr. Roosevelt," Caldwell asked him. "I was about to lose that house, wrote to Mr. Roosevelt and he saved it for me." O'Brien was with a group of actors visiting in Roosevelt's office. Mrs. O'Brien nudged and pushed her husband closer to the president, until Pat showed him the photo. When the screen star reported this to Caldwell, the stage-hand phoned Mrs. O'Brien and said: "Thanks a lot—for pushing Pat onstage."

Kindergarten Teas
Are Held This Week

Parents of children who will be entering kindergarten next fall are being entertained this week at a series of teas held at the various school buildings.

The first tea was held at the Washington school yesterday. Others scheduled are: Jefferson school, today; Webster, Wednesday; Barr, Thursday; and Franklin, Friday.

Junior high school classes, taught by Marian Shane, did some baking for the teas. A committee of mothers of this year's kindergartens are in charge of the events.

Teachers discuss the objectives of kindergarten work with the parents, and suggest preparatory work that might be done with the children during the summer.

During this month, next year's kindergarten children will be given an opportunity to visit their rooms to get acquainted with the program.

Cathryn Pattison
Sings In Concert

Miss Cathryn Pattison, sophomore at Michigan State college, East Lansing, was one of 104 students who participated in the annual spring concert of the Women's Glee club, Friday night. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Pattison, formerly of Escanaba, now of East Lansing.

Miss Pattison is a scholarship student enrolled in the school of science and arts. The glee club, which is under the direction of Dr. William R. Sur, professor of music, also broadcast a second program from the college radio station WKAR Sunday afternoon.

Daily Three-Mile
Walk Slims Hips

By ALICIA HART

So, you complain that you'd like to look less hippy in your new spring suit, and in the same breath reaffirm your dislike of exercise.

Well, try walking with an objective in view. Walking is not dull if it gets you places. You'll find three miles in three-quarters of an hour every day will narrow down your hips, whip up a lazy circulation and force you to drag in deep draughts of air. All in all it will keep you in finer fettle.

To straighten out curvy hips, you'll need to hold up abdominal walls, swing in the longest strides your legs will accommodate, and step smartly in flat-heeled shoes.

Flat-heels not only get you about more comfortably but get more stretch out of back leg muscles, which is what you need for hip-flattening exercise.

EHS Students Talk
On Current News
Topics During May

Escanaba senior high school students are helping in the campaign to inform Escanaba citizens about the Dumbarton Oaks proposals and the big issues before the San Francisco conference. Members of the debate squad and others trained during the spring speech contests, under the direction of Bertrand Henne, will speak during this month before P. T. A. units and other civic organizations.

Those speaking on "The Structure of the Dumbarton Oaks Proposals" are Don Swellander and Lois Emrich. Gladys Schmelter and Sue Moran are talking on "Big Issues Facing the Nations," and the topic on which Marilyn Meiers and Florence Olson are speaking is "The Long Struggle for Peace," a historical background to the peace movements.

Any civic organization or group wishing to have one of these speakers should contact Charles Folio by calling 2122, or 389-M after school hours.

It was announced by the Ministerial Association that, because there has been no definite announcement that today will be observed as V-E Day, the services will be held before 5:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Catholic churches will be open all day today, and the special services are scheduled for 7:30 tonight.

Preparations for the observance of V-E Day by the churches has been made for some time in anticipation of the event. Congregations previously were informed that special services would be held when the victory proclamation was announced.

CENTRAL HEAT FOR CHISHOLM

Minnesota City Council Approves Postwar Project

Chisholm, Minn. — Determined to free their city from smoke and soot and to solve forever their domestic, commercial and industrial heating problems, the Chisholm city council has just passed an ordinance granting a franchise for furnishing central steam heat and electric power to the entire city, from a cooperatively-owned plant. The plan was considered doubly attractive because it provides an ideal civic improvement project for post-war construction and employment.

The franchise, awarded to John J. Dwyer of Duluth, authorizes the construction of an adequate steam and electric generating plant with the necessary underground heat distribution lines and electrical circuits, just as soon as war production schedules permit release of materials.

Steam service will be made available to every residential, commercial and industrial building, where it can be adapted to existing warm-air, hot-water or steam heating systems. It was brought out at Council meetings that this would completely eliminate the need for individual furnace stoking and ash handling, and would abate a smoke nuisance, assuring a cleaner, more healthful community. Preliminary estimates indicate that the overall fuel consumption will be reduced approximately 25 per cent. Another benefit considered was the utilization of extra basement space upon removal of individual furnaces. It was also pointed out that new homes could be spared the expense of basement excavation and construction.

The city is now served with light and power from an extensive power transmission system. Under the new plan, the citizens of Chisholm will purchase heat—along with electricity, gas and water, from a central source.

Central steam heating is in use today in downtown and industrial areas of most of our large cities. In some cases, lines have been extended to bring its benefits to residential areas. However, Chisholm is the first American City to enact legislation that will provide city-wide central heating as a post-war project.

A Capella Choir Presents Concert At Lions Meeting

The Escanaba high school a capella choir, under the direction of Paul Bowers, presented an outstanding concert in observance of National Music Week at the regular meeting of the Escanaba Lions club last evening at the Sherman hotel.

In opening the program Florence Olson briefly reviewed the history of National Music Week, emphasizing the importance of music in national and international relations.

In addition to the choir numbers, the program included two solos by Florence Olson, "Chanson de Florian" and "I Love Life" and three solos by Dan Raess, "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," "Without a Song" and "The Lord's Prayer," the latter an encore number.

Songs presented by the choir included the following: "Cherubin Song," "Hear Thou Our Prayer," "Joshua Fit the Battle of Jericho," "It's a Castle," "Stouthearted Men," "Blind Ploughman," "Escanaba Fight Song" and "There Are Such Things."

Munising News

Munising Soldier Freed, Tells About Prison Camp Life

Pvt. Bernard Aken arrived home Wednesday evening to spend a 60-day rest period at his home after having been liberated from a German prisoner of war camp on March 28 by the 7th Army.

He was inducted into the army in March of 1944 and after basic training came home on leave in August and left for overseas duty in the latter part of August landing in France on Labor Day. After several weeks of front line duty in the Saarburg area with the infantry, the company was told to advance one morning and Aken with two other men got separated from the rest of the company behind the German lines and couldn't get back to their headquarters. The three men hid in a foxhole the rest of the day and at dusk set out to find their way back to the lines. They came upon a house that was located in German territory and proceeded to hole up for the night. That night the Germans found out they were in it and opened fire on them. They managed to hold them off until they were smoked out after the house had been set on fire. When they couldn't stand the smoke any longer they came out with their hands up and surrendered to a company of German soldiers.

Charged With Atrocities
After being captured they were taken back of the lines and on the way passed through many cities the largest was Frankfurt, which Aken said was entirely leveled off by Allied bombing. They traveled mainly at night by rail with little opportunity to see anything.

The three men were then taken to a prison camp about a mile on outskirts of Limburg. Upon reaching the camp they were thoroughly questioned and charged with every atrocity known in the books Aken relates. Mainly the Germans charged them with mutilating the German wounded that had been captured by the 7th Army.

As punishment Aken was placed in solitary confinement in a cell 6 by 8 with a small bench with a gunny sack mattress filled with straw to sleep on. He said the diet was very "simple," imitation coffee and black bread for breakfast, soup made from vegetables with no meat added for dinner and supper. Aken elaborated on the soup saying that it looked like the vegetables were pulled out of the ground and leaves, stalk and were chopped up and put in the soup without even having been cleaned. When you got to the bottom of the bowl (if you were hungry enough to eat that far) the bottom of the bowl contained sand and dirt that wasn't fit for a pig to eat. To balance their diet they were fed sauerkraut that had spoiled and the Germans wouldn't eat so they gave it to the prisoners.

During the five and half month Aken was in the camp, he became ill once and was put in the hospital along side of starving American soldiers and the pictures of these men later appeared in the Life magazine that were taken at the Limburg prison camp. The guards at the camp were all old men and wounded soldiers.

On the morning of March 28 when the 7th Army was getting near Limburg all of the prisoners, about 1,200 of them, were herded up and with the guards started back into Germany to try and escape from the 7th Army. After traveling about six hours advanced units of the 7th Army caught up to them and the guards gave themselves up.

After getting something to eat and given a thorough "delousing" the liberated prisoners were then given the good news they were to be sent home as soon as transportation could be arranged. After getting on a troop transport in France a short stop in England to pick up wounded and Aken arrived home Wednesday evening May 2.

He is married to the former Ruth Eklund who with their three sons reside with her father on W. Onota St.

Dixon Makes Visit To German Lines On Russian Front

BY KENNETH L. DIXON
Germany, May 4 (delayed) (AP)—This bloody and bitter European war is ending now on the same bizarre note on which it began over five years ago.

This story, for instance, should be datelined, "with German forces on the German-Russian front," because that's where I spent the afternoon. And for the most part I spent it as a sort of honored guest.

Just as in late 1939 and early 1940 French and German soldiers sat and stared at each other across the Maginot Line, this afternoon German and American soldiers sat and stared at each other across the Elbe River front. In the distance was the sound of Russian guns, and thousands of "enemy" soldiers and civilians fought to get across a tiny, precarious foot bridge which led to the American lines and safety.

Panic Grows
Slowly the Russian pocket was closing around those who remained east of the Elbe's racing current and panic was setting in.

Fighting our way across the footbridge, made of carelessly tossed planks, in the shadow of the blown Elbe bridge, Cpl. Ralph E. Curtis of Davenport, Iowa, and I hiked deep into the lines of German troops who were defending one of the crazy, fantastic pockets against the Russians—without worrying in the slightest at the moment about the Americans at their backs. After all, from their point of view, about the most fortunate thing which can happen to them at this point is to be ordered to surrender to the Yanks.

Thus strong is the German fear of Russian retribution these days. This afternoon's freak situation was possible both because of that fear and because the Russians and Americans were so close together at this particular point that neither side dared to use artillery to any extent. Otherwise the pocket where Ralph and I walked would have been a scene of bloody slaughter.

Weapons Discarded
Anyhow we walked forward from the river through columns of Germans who wished to surrender. Most of them already had discarded their weapons and were only sad and sorrowful looking characters. However, a few still carried pistols which they surrendered.

Previously scores of tankers, half-track drivers and self-propelled gun operators had pulled their vehicles up to the eastern bank of the river and abandoned them. Riflemen had either burned their carbines in countless bonfires which lined the river's edge or thrown them away. Only small sidearms which could be hidden in packs or pockets remained and most Germans were more than willing to give them up.

But suddenly after we had left all other olive drab uniforms behind we began to meet Wehrmacht soldiers who not only didn't wish to give up their weapons but also had no intention of surrendering. They were, they said, still fighting.

It's disconcerting, to say the least, suddenly to find yourself in the midst of enemy troops—especially when such troops still consider themselves officially enemy.

Cold Glances Given
However, for the most part they seemed to content themselves with informing us they were not yet ready to surrender, so Ralph and I decided to continue. Eventually we found ourselves in the midst of German positions. Here and there members of the black-clad Hitler troops gave us cold, forbidding glances and seemed to have especially itchy fingers. But otherwise the Wehrmacht still fighting our Russian Allies to the east handled us with typical visiting firemen aplomb.

On both sides as we stood along the equipment-littered road came the vicious stutter of machine guns. Slowly the Russians were losing in. The German attitude seemed much similar to what it had been at such places as Cassino and Anzio—except now it was the Russians they wanted to be the victims of their last rounds of ammunition before they surrendered. It used to be the Americans.

A strange, incongruous climax to this fantastic scene came when we found a young German soldier with a much-prized type of automatic pistol. We suggested he give it up to add to our captured collection which we were carrying back to our command post across the river—a collection which strangely no German ever attempted to take.

Scrap Pistol Traded
"Sorry, but I can't," he said in comparatively good English. "I must fight the Russians tonight. Our officers are arranging a surrender but we don't give up to you Americans until tomorrow."

Being utterly unprincipled horse-traders from way back,

MUNISING BRIEFS
Lester Ness and Lief Nelson spent the weekend in Escanaba with their wives and children.

BM 2/c Robert Rousseau left Sunday evening to return to Chicago. From there he will be re-assigned to duty.

Pvt. Robert Benagh arrived Friday evening to spend a furlough with his wife and mother.

Mrs. Bea Molle and daughter, Reta Rae, of Lansing are spending a few days here visiting with friends.

Mrs. Frank J. Ward, student nurse at Harpers hospital, Detroit, is home on vacation, visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chevrete.

Miss Patty Ann Johnson, cadet nurse at the Michael Reese hospital, Chicago, left Saturday morning to return to her studies after spending a 30-day leave with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson.

The Women's Society of Christian Service will meet Wednesday, May 9, at the church parlors at 2:15. A pot-luck lunch will be served.

Mrs. Calistine Paris is a patient in the Munising hospital.

MRS. BARBARA FARROW
Funeral services for Mrs. Barbara Farrow who passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Hoy on Friday, were held Monday morning, May 7, in Sacred Heart church with the Rev. Fr. O. J. LaMothe conducting the last rites.

Pallbearers were: Eugene Dott, Eugene Coty, David Depew, Albert Bovan, George Schilling and John Sharkey.

Burial was made in Maple Grove cemetery.

Weapons Discarded
Anyhow we walked forward from the river through columns of Germans who wished to surrender. Most of them already had discarded their weapons and were only sad and sorrowful looking characters. However, a few still carried pistols which they surrendered.

Previously scores of tankers, half-track drivers and self-propelled gun operators had pulled their vehicles up to the eastern bank of the river and abandoned them. Riflemen had either burned their carbines in countless bonfires which lined the river's edge or thrown them away. Only small sidearms which could be hidden in packs or pockets remained and most Germans were more than willing to give them up.

But suddenly after we had left all other olive drab uniforms behind we began to meet Wehrmacht soldiers who not only didn't wish to give up their weapons but also had no intention of surrendering. They were, they said, still fighting.

It's disconcerting, to say the least, suddenly to find yourself in the midst of enemy troops—especially when such troops still consider themselves officially enemy.

Cold Glances Given
However, for the most part they seemed to content themselves with informing us they were not yet ready to surrender, so Ralph and I decided to continue. Eventually we found ourselves in the midst of German positions. Here and there members of the black-clad Hitler troops gave us cold, forbidding glances and seemed to have especially itchy fingers. But otherwise the Wehrmacht still fighting our Russian Allies to the east handled us with typical visiting firemen aplomb.

On both sides as we stood along the equipment-littered road came the vicious stutter of machine guns. Slowly the Russians were losing in. The German attitude seemed much similar to what it had been at such places as Cassino and Anzio—except now it was the Russians they wanted to be the victims of their last rounds of ammunition before they surrendered. It used to be the Americans.

A strange, incongruous climax to this fantastic scene came when we found a young German soldier with a much-prized type of automatic pistol. We suggested he give it up to add to our captured collection which we were carrying back to our command post across the river—a collection which strangely no German ever attempted to take.

Scrap Pistol Traded

FIFTEEN MINES ON MARQUETTE

Range In North Shipped 4,790,177 Tons Of Ore In 1944

Fifteen iron mines, all large producers, this year will maintain the shipments of iron ore from the Marquette iron range of northern Michigan. In the 1943 shipping season the Marquette range had 16 iron mines on the shipping list. However, the Lake Superior-Holmes iron mine became exhausted in 1943, and was absent from the shipping list in 1944. The Lake Superior-Holmes mine has a consistent shipment record since 1858. In the 1944 shipping season the Marquette range shipped a total of 4,790,177 gross tons of iron ore. From present estimates about the same total shipment is expected from the range in the current season.

Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co., which annually mines about 75 per cent of the iron ore shipped off the range, is now in production at the Athens, Negaunee, Maas and Cambria mines at Negaunee, Mich., the Mather and Cliffs mines at Ishpeming, Mich., the Lloyd mine at North Lake, the Tilden siliceous pit at Palmer, and the Princeton mine at Gwinn. The latter mine is located 23 miles from Negaunee. All Cleveland-Cliffs mining on this range is underground, with exception of the Tilden property, which is an open cut in the siliceous ore belt near Palmer.

Cliffs Shaft Mine
The Cliffs Shaft, a producer of specular hard iron ore, has an outstanding record as a shipper of the Marquette iron range. The Cliffs mine commenced shipments as far back as 1887, from the Barnum property, then an active part of the Cliffs mine, which appeared on the ore shipment records as early as 1888. As the Barnum went off the shipping list the Cliffs property carried on the production of the mine, as it does today. The Cliffs Shaft is rich in history. The Cliffs mine came into the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. in 1890, when the Iron Cliffs company and the Cleveland Iron Mining Co. were merged to form the present Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co.

Concrete Shaft Houses
The two accompanying views show in part the surface layout at the Cliffs mine. It is an outstanding continuous cable system, operated from a central hoisting plant, located midway between two concrete shaft houses. These two structures are pyramidal in design. They were erected in 1919 supplanting two other shaft houses which had served for many years previous.

As skips are raised from underground at each shaft house the iron ore is dumped into a larry car of seven-tons capacity, the same capacity as the skips. These larry cars operate in a balanced cable system on the inclined trestles, the returning empty car going downgrade acting as a counter weight to help the loaded car upgrade.

In the plant the run of mine ore is separated out to size by crushing and screening.

Negaunee-Ishpeming Area
The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. maintains deep vertical shafts, harnessed by its own electrical power, driving large capacity mine hoists in the daily routine of mining and hoisting iron ore to surface the year around.

The Negaunee iron mine in 1944 shipped a total of 858,021 gross tons of iron ore, the largest shipment from the Marquette range. This mine also pioneered electrification with the Cleveland-Cliffs mines when the Negaunee mine steam power was supplanted by electricity in 1910.

Other large Cleveland-Cliffs producers of iron ore in the Negaunee-Ishpeming area are the Cliffs, Athens and the Maas mines.

The North Range Mining Co. was the second largest shipper of iron ore in 1944 from the Marquette range, with production from the Blueberry mine at North Lake and the Mary Charlotte mine at Negaunee. Currently the company is working two shifts, six days per week at both properties.

The Inland Steel Co. is back in the shipping of iron ore from its two active mines on the Marquette iron range, the Morris mine at North Lake and the Greenwood mine six miles west of Ishpeming. In the siliceous ore belt southeast of Negaunee, production of this class of ore comes from three mines, the Volunteer mine operated by Pickands, Mather & Co., the Richmond operated by the M. A. Hanna Co., the Richmond operated by the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. The production from each of these pit mines last year varied from 154,000 to 200,000 tons of ore.

Five mining companies are in active ore production on the Marquette iron range this year, the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co., North Range Mining Co., Inland Steel Co., Pickands, Mather & Co., and The M. A. Hanna Co.

Longer Hauls of Years Ago
The Marquette range is the pioneer of all the Lake Superior iron ranges. It is where iron ore was first shipped. The range has been a long and persistent source of iron ore. Many years ago the Marquette range active mining operations were more widely scattered than now. Though now inactive, the Marquette range formerly shipped iron ore in an area 30 miles west of Ishpeming. In that district the Champion mine shipped iron ore from 1868 to 1910, the Imperial mine had a long record of iron ore shipments that commenced there in 1882. The Beaufort mine appears in former shipments of that area, commencing in 1882. The long record of iron ore shipments from the Republic mine, now ended, cut off another of the one-mine long rail hauls to the ore docks at Marquette.

Gwinn District
The Marquette range has settled down to a standard pattern of activity with its large production from the Negaunee-Ishpeming area, which includes North Lake and Palmer, Gwinn, which has one producer, the Princeton mine, is the only long distance off-shoot from the center of the range's mining. Gwinn is 23 miles from Negaunee, and is an old and well established community. From Skilling's Mining Review.

Bark beetles have destroyed more than 250 million board feet of high value spruce timber in the Engelmann spruce forests of the Central Rocky Mountain region during the last two years, an amount equivalent to the wood necessary to build more than 2000 average-size homes.

FARMERS HAVE BUSY WINTER

43 Families Cut Timber On Experimental Forest In U. P.

The old idea that a farmer sits around all winter, toasting his shins beside the kitchen fire or the pot-bellied stove at the village store, was added to the limbo of many other habits of rural Americana this year, according to the Lake States Forest Experiment Station of St. Paul, Minnesota.

Records were kept of 43 forest-farm families who entered the old Upper Peninsula Experimental Forest in Michigan and spent a profitable winter season getting out timber and allied forest products, not only adding to the family income but aiding the war effort materially. One of the main objectives on this tract is to provide part time employment for local farmers.

During the winter of 1944-45, 51 workers representing 43 families averaged 94 days per worker on the project. They produced 573,000 bd. ft. of sawlogs and mine props, 2,544 cords of chemical wood, 528 cords of pulpwood and 227 cedar tie bolts.

In terms of cash wages they received $630 per worker or $750 per family. A daily wage ran around $6.70. Walter M. Zillgitt, silviculturist of the Lake States Station, says: "The opportunity for the farmers to combine their agricultural tasks with woods work is important not only because of the additional income they obtain, but also because the effectiveness of these workers in harvesting forest products for the war is greatly increased by the opportunity to live at home and work close by."

He further points out that farmers' woodlots have played an important part in getting out timber for the armed forces and in the future the farmers' woodland tracts have a definite value. They may not be a virgin stand, but a second growth stand yields pulpwood, ties, poles, lagging, chemical and fuel woods. If in doubt as to markets and values, the State Extension Forester of Farm Foresters stands ready to supply this information.

Government Looks For Women Workers

Typists, stenographers and clerks are urgently needed for positions in Washington, D. C., and Chicago according to Claire M. Fiebig and Therese J. Miller, U. S. Civil Service Representatives in Escanaba, at the U. S. Employment Service until May 19 to recruit for these civil service jobs.

All appointments are subject to civil service regulations. Applicants must be at least 17½ years of age and not more than 58. Women who qualify will get transportation paid to Washington and are guaranteed adequate housing in the Capital. Persons now employed in essential war work are not eligible. Salaries range from $146 to $164 per month.

New employees reporting to Washington or Chicago are met at the train by a member of their employment relations staff, who assists them in selecting living accommodations. Further information may be obtained at the U. S. Employment Service.

News From Men In The Service

William (Billy) Truckey S. 2-c of San Diego, Calif., son of Mrs. Nick Gemuenden of Nahma, is now attending a naval college in Norman, Okla., following his boot training at Percy Jones Naval Base in California. Billy has been in service three months and his wife and two children are living at their home in San Diego. He met his cousin, Robert Sly of Gladstone who is a petty officer and is an instructor in the Radar Course.

Mrs. Gemuenden has another son, Pfc. Fritz Gemuenden who is with the U. S. Army and has been stationed in England the past ten months.

Sgt. Francis Turek, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Turek of Nahma, received his promotion April 18 and is in the 4th Div. of Patton's 3rd army somewhere in Germany. Francis is with a tank corps. It is his second promotion in three months. He stated in his letter to his wife, that it is not as dangerous as it used to be and not to worry. He had the luck of getting a German watch. He is counting the days and hopes to be home soon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Turek have another son in service in the Pacific theater of war, S/Sgt. Homer Turek.

Earl A. Cousineau, U. 1-c, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Cousineau of Nahma, is now at a naval base in the Pacific. He received his boot training at the Curtis Bay Coast Guard Training station and was with the office personnel the past two years and nine months. In March he volunteered for foreign duty at a specified base and left in April from San Francisco. He likes the new surroundings. The climate is perfect. Flowers grow abundantly everywhere.

S/Sgt. Leonard J. Cousineau, a brother of Earl, is at Grenier Field, Manchester, N. H., with the North Atlantic Division of the Air Transport Command. He is doing clerical work.

Santa Ana, Calif., — S/Sgt. Joseph Boch, 27, son of Mrs. Helen Bochdewicz of Perronville, Mich. is currently assigned to the AAF Redistribution Station No. 4 at Santa Ana Army Air Base. Sgt. Boch, who was a radio operator-mechanic with the 5th Air Force, entered the service on Jan. 26, 1941 and went overseas in Feb. 1942. He is entitled to wear one unit citation, three battle stars, and the Asiatic-Pacific theater ribbons for his participation in the Asiatic-Pacific theater. At this redistribution station, an operation of the personal distribution command, combat returnees of the AAF receive complete medical examination, classification interviews and reassignment to domestic stations of the Army Air Forces.

Corporal Ernest Bernard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Bernard of Garden, Mich., can lay claim to the distinction of having built roads from Australia to the Philippines. He can also consider himself one of the real veterans of World War II. He's starting his fourth year overseas.

Cpl. Bernard, a member of the veteran 32nd Red Arrow Division's 114th Engineer Battalion, came overseas in April of 1942. His theater of action has been the whole long "road back" from Australia through New Guinea to the Philippines. The 32nd Division has been "in the line" almost half of the total time the U. S. has been at war and claims more combat time than any U. S. Division in the present war.

The 114th Engineers have built roads in all kinds of terrain from the muddy jungles of New Guinea to the mud of Leyte and the precipitous, dusty mountains of Luzon. They have been right on the heels of the doughboys and often subject to enemy artillery, mortar and sniper fire.

He wears the American Defense Ribbon, the Asiatic Pacific Ribbon with three stars, and the Philippine Liberation Ribbon with star. He also wears the Distinguished Unit Badge awarded the engineers by the President for their work at Buna and Sananda in Papua, New Guinea.

His brother, Staff Sergeant Alpha is with the 1st Cavalry Division in Manila, P. I.

After the war he plans to go into civil service.
Pfc. Fredrick Blowers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blowers of Nahma, who was slightly wounded in France on Nov. 20, is now back in the states, just arriving recently. He is hospitalized at Camp Shank, N. Y. He sent a Mother's day card with no message but that he was back in the states. They have three other sons in service. Joe, in Italy, Clarence, in France, and Junior in the states.

Louis Charles Breitenbach, 20, seaman, first class, 1407 Stephenson avenue, Escanaba, Mich., is stationed at the motor torpedo boat squadrons training center, Melville, R. I. Following a training period he will join a PT squadron in the Pacific. Breitenbach is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Frederick, and has one brother, Theodore, serving with the Army. He is a graduate of the Escanaba high school and attended Denison University.

DEATH CALLS
C. EGGERTSONHeart Attack Is Fatal
To Veteran City
Employee

Charles W. Eggertson, 58, lifelong resident of Manistique and city employee for the past 20 years, died at his home at 515 Delta avenue early Monday morning. Death was due to a heart attack which came without warning. He had, apparently, been in good health up to a few hours before the end came.

Mr. Eggertson was born in Manistique on February 24, 1887. On July 31, 1917 he was married to Jane Ryan. She preceded him in death nine years ago. For a number of years he was employed by the Schoolcraft county road commission and for the last twenty years has worked for the city. He attended the Redeemer Presbyterian church.

Surviving him are a son, Major John P. Eggertson, special service officer with the 87th division of the third army under General Patton; and three daughters, Norcen, at home; Mrs. Norma Eakley, Manistique; and Betty, of Jackson.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, at the Morton funeral home with the Rev. William Harrington officiating. Burial will be in Lakeview cemetery.

BATTLE FOREST
FIRE THREATFour Forestry Crews
Fight Flames At Resort

Fire of an undetermined origin destroyed two buildings at the Uno resort on Corner Lake in Inwood township and provided the most serious forest fire threat of the season before it was subdued Sunday afternoon.

Starting in the garage, the fire spread to a tool house and both being of flimsy construction, the buildings caused a shower of sparks which started numerous fires in the adjacent timbered area. Crews from Manistique, Nahma, Cooks and Munising were called in to combat the fires. A fire lane was plowed and this effectively confined the fire to eight acres in the immediate vicinity of the resort. The main building and cabins were not harmed by the fire.

The fire started at 10:30 in the morning and was brought under control about 1:30. Two pumps did effective work in preventing the spread of the flames.

According to H. O. Nixon, local fire ranger, the area was at the extreme fire hazard as there had been no rain in that area for about ten days and the floor of the forest was extremely dry.

The property, which was for years conducted by Frank Case, is now owned and managed by W. Elgland. The loss on buildings is covered by insurance.

...and that government

of the people,

by the people,

for the people,

shall not perish from the earth

In this moment of military victory, we join our fellow Americans in prayer and tribute to our valiant Fighting Forces, and to the courageous and unselfish sacrifices of all Allied Nations.

May total victory and lasting peace, soon be God's blessing upon all peoples.
